Canoesport Journal

North America's magazine of the open canoe

Dear Friends,

I'm Harry Roberts. I'd like to tell you about my new magazine, Canoesport Journal.

To begin with, it's about open canoes. Just open canoes. It's not that I dislike other forms of paddlecraft. It's just that they're covered pretty well elsewhere. But nobody says much about open canoes except to remind us that they're pretty neat — and I think we all know that already! In other words, we open canoe paddlers have been treated like slightly backward children for some time now, and as a seriously addicted open canoe paddler, I resent that. So I started a magazine.

As usual, I put the cart before the horse. The accepted way to start a magazine is to spend money getting subscribers, and then use what's left to get writers. To me, writers are the magazine. So I spent a lot more time fussing over writers and putting together our first issue than I spent promoting the new magazine.

But, you know, it was worth it. I was able to get some of my old hands back from my years at Wilderness Camping, and a lot of young Turks who are in the mainstream of contemporary canoeing. This won't come as any surprise to Betty Ketter, but some of them are Minnesotans. Cliff Jacobson's on board with a camping column — and general carte blanche to say what needs to be said without regard to the sensitivity of advertisers. Al and Jenny Rudquist will conduct a racing column. Jim dale Vickery, who wrote an elegant piece on the lure of wild country for the first issue (illustrated by another Minnesotan, Bob Cary), will be writing regularly. And Ol' Cliff interviewed Bob Brown in the first issue. I was starting to think that I was doing a national issue of Hut! for a while!

Who else is on board? Well, Dana Grover and Tom Sebring will be covering solo and tandem "sit and switch" paddling techniques. Mickey Landry and Mike Galt will cover solo and tandem sport paddling. Bob Lantz will cover river reading. Steve Scarborough will cover whitewater techniques. Dave Curtis will be covering canoeing gear. Pat Moore will be writing on basic principles of canoeing. Garrett Conover will write on classical canoeing and canoe camping. Michael Peake will keep us posted on the Canadian scene. Dave Getchell Sr. will be writing on navigation.

And that's just part of it. That just covers the columnists, whose work appears regularly. Of course, my working rule for columnists is that they should cover each topic completely; if they need more space, it's theirs for the asking. Expect depth; expect completeness; expect information.

For example, most magazines will give you a cursory half-page on canoe design. Our first issue has Dave Yost covering design for seaworthiness — in six pages. And you'll be hearing more from DY in time. You'll also be hearing from other designers in articles and interviews. (Of course, three Canoesport Journal columnists are working canoe designers: Mike Galt, Pat Moore and Steve Scarborough).

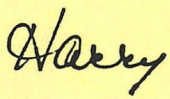

Most magazines will give you a tepid two pages — maybe three — on somewhere to paddle that probably involves air travel, cholera shots, and the hazards of entering a war zone. We'd rather keep the rivers and lakes in North America, and we'd rather tell you a lot about them. Things you won't find in guidebooks.

Other things? Expect equipment reviews and water tests. Expect a reader-participation column called "In search of . . ." that will serve as a vehicle for you to get your ideas to the manufacturer. Expect a lively Letters column, with plenty of room for ideas. Don't expect a lot of color photgraphy — just expect excellent color photography. And expect a crisp, readable format that makes a distinction between ad material and text material.

To get Canoesport Journal, just fill out the coupon below and mail it to our subscription office, P.O. Box 991, Odessa, FL 33556. I'd like it if you enclosed a check; starting a magazine is an object lesson in negative cash flow. But we're happy to bill you. Just check the appropriate box. We'll start you with the October issue, so you won't miss Cliff's interview with Brownie and Dave Yost's design piece.

And if you want a Writer's Guide, or just want to kick some ideas around, the editorial office address is P.O. Box 635, Oscoda, MI 48750; the phone is (517) 739-9997.

Thanks for reading this.
